

Highlighting your skills

We understand that the move into a new job can be both daunting and a bit scary.

Trying to understand what skills you have learnt at school/college and how you can put these into practice in a work setting can be difficult to identify and understand.

At Boots, we want to make things easier for you during your recruitment journey with us, using simple language about the essential skills required for a role - language that you will be familiar with from school/college and understand, for example: essential skills like; listening, problem solving, using your creativity and being a great team-player.

You will see this common language in our job adverts, hints and tips for interviews or at the interview stage – in which we want you to talk and highlight some of the skills you have learnt and are familiar with.

If successful after interview you will continue your journey to develop these essential skills further and learn new ones on the way – along with the support from your line manager, assessor-tutor/coach and your work colleagues. We really want to bring out the best in you

Together we can make feel good happen

The Boots logo, featuring the word 'Boots' in a white, cursive script font on a teal background.